is now in full running order and ready to handle any sort of Edition Printing for Publishers.

As printers of the Publishers' Weekly, Library Journal and other publications of the office of the Publishers' Weekly, with which we are affiliated, we are experts in bibliographical composition and are especially equipped to handle catalog work.

The average printer looks askance at book catalogs, with the finicky

Why not let us estimate on your fall catalog or on one or two of your fall novels—especially those with long press runs.

THE END OF THE MACY LITIGATION.

THE end of the Macy litigation, which has hung over the American book trade like an ominous cloud for over thirteen years, is at last in sight. The American Publishers' Association lost, fairly and squarely, in the highest court in the land. It remained only to pay the piper—and the piper's toll has now been levied. No question of principle is involved in last week's settlement: it is but an inevitable sequence of the Supreme Court's decision last year.

• One hundred and forty thousand dollars sounds like a large sum of money: it is a large sum of money. Its payment comes hard upon the trade at this time particularly, despite a partial adjustment to their capabilities, upon some of the smaller houses.

Yet to look upon this sum, as some of the payers may, as a sheer waste, is to look upon the whole litigation, it seems to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, after all a little short-sightedly. The "Macy cases" have cost the trade, in time, worry and expense, far beyond the $140,000 which caps the total. But what have they brought in return? Nothing less than the almost unanimous realization and recognition that in net prices, and in them alone, lies the economic salvation of the book-trade.

Thirteen years ago price cutting was rampant: the trade was disorganized: conditions were verging on the chaotic, and the book business of the country was fast falling into suicidal destruction. The "Macy cases" may have brought knowledge that any attempt to maintain prices by coercion or concerted action of any sort whatsoever is illegal. But they have also brought knowledge that net prices, maintained, not by coercion, but by individual choice, brings trade solidarity and makes prosperity, if not probable, at least possible. And they have accomplished a further equally general realization that unwarranted "cut prices" are a stupendous merchandizing blunder, if not actually immoral or illegal.

Perhaps $140,000 isn't too high a price to pay for knowledge of such importance so thoroughly disseminated and assimilated by the trade.

THE temporary embarrassment of the H. B. Claflin Company—for we are assured it is but temporary—has aroused the same feelings in the book trade as in every other line of merchandize touched by that tremendous organization, regret for its difficulties and the most cordial co-operation to effect its emergence from them. We are informed that under the temporary receivership all book orders, both for immediate and future delivery, will be filled as usual, that, in other words, the business "is being continued without interruption." The same is true also of the book department of all the subsidiary retail stores which have been put into temporary receivership by the troubles of the parent concern. Such is the time when a reputation for fair dealing reaps its reward.

WE are with this issue sending out the index of the Jan-June, 1914, volume of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. We have always heretofore sent out the index with the concluding number of the volume, but always at the cost of some delay. If the new practice causes any difficulty in binding, we shall be glad to reconsider the matter.

FRIDAY, July 10, has been selected for the seventh annual "Outing Day" of the book trade representatives in Chicago. The Midlothian Country Club will be the gathering place.

SETTLEMENT OF "MACY CASES" IN SIGHT.

FINAL settlement of the so-called "Macy cases" is in sight. The American Publishers' Association, having lost in the thirteen year legal battle, has been for some months past in negotiation with the Macy firm to fix the amount of damages to be paid. A referee, Mr. Coudert, was appointed by the Court in regular form, but through the good offices of Mr. Chas. Bernheimer, the Chairman of the Committee on Arbitration of the New York Chamber of Commerce, a settlement by mutual agreement was eventually effected.

Damages of $140,000.00 have been agreed upon, and, though the actual money is still to be paid, the agreement brings the long and vexing litigation to an end. It also acts as an estoppel of the new federal action for damages threatened by the R. H. Macy Company.

THE CHILD'S OWN LIBRARY (?)*

By MARY ELY, HEAD OF CHILDREN'S WORK, DAYTON, O.

SURELY, if it were true of nothing else in all the universe, that which John Burroughs has said, "For lo, my own shall come to me," it would still be true of our problems. Flouted and passed by upon the highway, they turn upon us and seek us out in the places where we dwell.

I believe that I can state the problem that I see confronting and pressing upon the children's librarians to-day most clearly, if I may be allowed to be frankly personal, recounting the steps by which I first entered into consciousness of that problem and describing its aspect as I see it now. I am the more emboldened to do this, since I believe that with the exception of an initial confession of self-righteous stupidity, I am, in speaking for myself, speaking for children's librarians everywhere and describing a typical experience.

I do not now recall when I first met the problem, but the recollection of the first time that I consciously disowned it is very clear to me. I had made a visit to the book department of one of our local stores and had found there tables, shelves and counters, piled high with the latest cheap books in series for children. I saw placards everywhere advertising them at nineteen cents apiece, two books for thirty-five. I heard the saleswomen enthusiastically recommending them. I saw, while I waited, not less than a dozen people eagerly purchasing them. A bargain in books, so much paper, so much print, for so little money! Thus was literature being spread broadcast among our children, thus was the book carrying its mission into every home!

I turned away fairly disheartened at the sight. I went back to the library and discarded two authors of whose worth I had for some time been feeling doubtful. I said to myself with much vehemence that I would put the standard of our book selection higher than it had been before, that in the children's library at least the children of our city should find and read real books and know the inspiration of true literature. I pictured myself as maintaining a green oasis in the midst of the desert waste whose barrenness I had just glimpsed, and the picture pleased me greatly. I had forgotten for the time being at least that "No man liveth unto himself alone." With a self-righteous air I boasted before a woman's club that the children who came to the public library were reading a better class of books than those who had their own libraries in their own homes. It is not the truth of that boast that I am questioning now. I still believe it true. But it is for the self-righteousness that I accuse myself and cry out "Mea culpa!" I believe I even rejoiced, orally in the bosom of my own family that the problem of the bookstore and the worthless books bought and sold there was not my problem!

It was at Christmas time that I awoke suddenly to the fact that the problem I had recently disowned in the bookstore had sought me out in the children's library and had come to stay with me. One after another of the children whose reading I had watched so carefully and guided so conscientiously as I thought in the right direction, and boasted of so openly, came back from their Christmas holidays clamoring for the books we did not have!

We had had our usual Christmas exhibit and had taken the usual number of orders for the books we recommended, but it now became apparent that if we might represent the Christmas buying and giving of children's books as a great sea, what we had done was to cast a tiny pebble that had scarcely caused a ripple upon the surface! Here indeed was food for thought!

And there again was more food for thought when a series of school visits had opened my eyes to other disturbing facts. I discovered by questioning that the library was having personal contact with less than one-third of all the children in the schools. Nor did this mean that the other two-thirds did not read. By no means! They wriggled and squirmed and waved their hands in the air in the hotness of their desire to tell me how many dozens of books they had read, how many complete series they owned, and how much the library missed by not having these same series, which were of a "swellness" that beggared description!

In fact, they made it very clear to me that in the matter of choosing between the "swell" authors and the "punk" ones the library often strangely and perversely inclined toward punkness. This was why the one-third who did frequent the library must frequently supplement their reading by buying books or borrowing from their classmates; this was why, no doubt, the other two-thirds never came to us at all.

In all except the poorest districts I found that the children owned books of their own in astonishingly large numbers, and circulated them among themselves at a rate that made the library statistics look very small by comparison. Why wonder at this, though, when books at ten cents or even nineteen are cheaper than most games or toys, or neckties, or ribbons for the hair, and when the idea that a book, regardless of its quality, is a good thing for a child, inheres in many minds?

I shall not dwell upon the bitterness with which I reflected upon all these things. I tried, only to face the situation squarely.

"You problem, who have fastened yourself upon me like an old man of the sea," I said,

* An address delivered at the Children's Librarians Section of the American Library Association at its Washington Conference, May 27, 1914.

"I shall never rest content until I know you through and through!"

I went to the book department of our largest store, and there I obtained permission to make a thorough examination of all their stock in trade and to read as many of the books as I desired. For many weary days, dusty of hands and faint of heart, I examined and read and entered into fruitless arguments with the seller of the books.

tailed folk-lore stories from which cruelty, stepmotherhood, weddings and other painful features had been removed. Here, too, were great novels and epic poems, Bible stories, and mythology, all so trimmed round about and turned inside out that one could almost fancy them crying out in protest like the old woman in the nursery rhyme, "Oh, dearie, dearie me, this is none of I!" Nothing has been too high or lofty, too deep or holy to

A WINDOW DISPLAY OF "SWEETAPPLE COVE," BY GEORGE VAN SCHAICK (SMALL, MAYNARD & CO.).

Arranged by Jordan, Marsh Co., Boston.

May I tell you in some detail just what I found? Back in the corners, where shelves and books alike were covered with dust long undisturbed, were the travel and geographical readers, the histories and nature-study books. These, by their very condition, proclaimed that they were not of the stuff of which my problem was made, and I passed them by.

In more prominent cases were Louisa Alcott and Howard Pyle, Anderson and Grimm, Leslie Brooke and Boyd Smith and many of the others whom I knew well. To my expressions of pleasure at meeting them and my praises of their worth, the book department man replied with chilling brevity: "Don't sell well! Never will! Too expensive!"

In another case were what he pointed out as the "classics," and these he hoped I would be pleased to know were pretty good sellers. I looked them over and found some of them not unknown to me, but many that were new. As I handled them and read them here and there, my indignation and my pity and my wonder grew apace. Adaptations, retellings, abridgments there were of all the world's great literature. Here were poor, beheaded and be-escape the hands of the zealous adapters who have sought to reduce the literary heritage of the ages to lowest terms in words of one syllable.

The picture books piled upon a table were cheap, flimsy things, poorly bound and illustrated with crude drawings, crudely colored. Even more than with their art I was disgusted with the ideas that they presented. Many of them were reproductions of the favorites of the Sunday paper comic supplements, and the others, though different, were no better.

It was in the fiction alcove that my saddest hours were spent. If I had started in as I am not quite sure I did not, with a faint hope that the series books might not be so bad as I had anticipated, that hope was shortly dissipated. The heroines of the cheap series for girls differ from the average girl who reads them only in that they possess more beautiful and costly clothes, run their own automobiles, have more boy admirers and escape more fortunately from their boarding-school escapades. These are lofty ideals that our girls may strive for!

Excitement is the keynote of the boys' stories. Thrilling adventures, hairbreadth escapes, villains and blackguards, stolen fortunes and aeroplane flights jostle each other on the pages where the up-to-the-minute boy hero proves himself more than equal to every occasion that presents himself! Poor English and much slang characterize the style.

Such books are cursed, twice cursed, once in that they are worthless in themselves, false to life, false to all experience; twice in that they utterly vitiate the taste of the boys and girls who read them and shut them out forever and forever from the realms where books may bring great truths, high thoughts, sweet companionship and divine inspiration!

Is the problem serious? Who questions it? But is the problem ours? Let us see.

It might be, do you think, the problem of the booksellers?

Upon one of my arguing days in the book department I asked my bookseller, who may or may not (I breathe a prayer) be representative of his kind, to tell me frankly why he sold books that he knew were trash.

"Because they are what the people buy," he said, "and because they have two merits. They are cheap and children like them."

"They like them, yes," I answered; "but what careful parent allows a child to choose his own wearing apparel according to his own unguided tastes?"

"Why clothes are clothes," said he, "and must look well because everybody sees them."

Again, discussing the merits of the adaptations, my lack of approval of which surprised him greatly, he said:

"These bring all the great literary works down within the reach of the smallest child."

"Bring them down," I repeated, heavily emphasizing the "down"; "so that there is never anything for the children's minds to reach up to and strive for."

"Why, the discomfort of reaching and striving when it is unnecessary?" he asked.

"Why gymnasiums to stretch and pull and exercise muscles?" said I.

"Well, muscles are muscles and minds are minds," said he.

And yet again: "These books," he said, fondly patting a pile, "are guaranteed to keep any child quiet and out of mischief."

"So are poisonous drugs and soothing syrups," I replied and fled precipitately before his evident intention of telling me that soothing syrups were soothing syrups.

So, from my own personal experience I can pin no great faith for present help to those who sell the books.

May not some appeal be made to those who write the books? One of the "swellest" of the "swell" authors for boys writes under two pseudonyms as well as under his own name, and produces an average of ten or twelve books a year. What is his purpose, his underlying motive? I cannot conceive it to be one that would make him open-minded to our arguments or appeals. And the same is true of the publishers of these books.

But the mothers and fathers and the aunts and uncles who buy the books? They at least have the children's best interests at heart and may be expected to grapple with the problem. It is lack of knowledge, I have found, that does the damage here. I am convinced that the majority of parents who have filled their children's bookshelves with the many volumes of the popular series have no conception of the sort of reading matter contained between their bright, attractive covers. They do not suspect that these books are on a level with those trashy, sentimental novels, sold for a dime and redeemed for five cents; such books as they themselves would not and could not read and enjoy. This latter thought is rather a sad commentary on the direction in which we are traveling and presents a dark outlook for the future; but I fear it is actually true that there are many instances in which the reading tastes being formed by the children are lower than those of their parents. Often and often mothers whose literary tastes I would not question have come to me and said: "We have no time to read and judge the children's books for ourselves. Only tell us what books are good and we will get them if we can afford them." Not here, then, can immediate action toward the solution of the problem be looked for.

The case of the teachers is much the same as that of the mothers, both as regards their good intentions and their handicap of lack of knowledge. No one who knows anything of the manifold claims upon the time of busy teachers can wonder that they are not able to acquaint themselves with the ever-increasing output of children's books.

By a process of elimination, having thus counted out teachers, parents, publishers booksellers and authors, all those from whom we might reasonably expect help in the present crisis, we find the finger of the problem pointing straight to us.

There are, to be sure, the Boy Scouts organization, from whom we are to hear this morning; the Campfire Girls, the playground associations and many other excellent agencies, who, in working out the question of child welfare, are finding our problem one phase of the greater ones to whose solution they have addressed themselves. But have they not a right to look to us who are specialists on the subject of children's book for help and co-operation at least, if not for leadership at this point?

Did you notice that in the process of the counting out I have said that I despaired only of present help? I have said it so, intentionally, for from the very persons now counted out the future and the final solution of the problem are to come. I see the children's librarians bridging the gap between this present need and that future aid; I see us as the thin, sharp edge of a great, powerful wedge, made up of a multitude of parents, teachers, booksellers, authors and publishers. I see this great wedge pushing its way through the mass of worthless books with which our markets are now flooded, crushing them back, stamping them out and opening a clear path from the great books of the past to the great books of the future. Nor do I think that this is foolish optimism or that I am expecting impossibilities of the children's librarians. It is the history of every great movement that a small vanguard who felt more keenly, saw more clearly, than the crowds who followed the need of the reform, have led the way.

Figurative language abandoned, there are two things we must do. First, we must preach the gospel and spread the knowledge of good books whenever, wherever, however we can; we must create a demand for better books for children. Secondly, having created this demand, we must somehow bring the prices of the good books down low enough to enable them to be used to satisfy it.

Toward the first end, the libraries have already taken several important steps. The library Christmas exhibits of children's books, talks to mothers and teachers, and the published lists of recommended books for children are all evidences of our activity along these lines.

As a slight variation from the usual Christmas exhibit at the library, the Dayton Library one year obtained permission from a local merchant to have its books displayed in the book department of his store. A trained children's librarian, paid by the merchant, was in charge to give advice and suggestions and take orders for the books. Though a success from a library point of view, the experiment has not been repeated, because it failed to bring a reasonable financial profit to the merchant.

I have heard, too, of a case in which a children's librarian was asked to take charge of a children's book department during the holiday season, but I know nothing of the details of the project nor of its success or failure. Some of you will know, no doubt, of other similar efforts.

So much for the past!

For the present and future, if by organizing or correlating our efforts we can make the compiling of lists of recommended books for children cheaper and better and insure their wider distribution, let us do it.

If, as a body or as individuals, there is any influence that we can bring to bear toward the end that every children's book department in this land shall be under the guidance of some one who knows and loves the best books of all ages of time, for all ages of man, for the sake of the cause we hold dear, let us do it!

In regard to bringing down the prices of the best children's books, or rather of having them published in less expensive editions, I cannot find that the libraries have yet done anything, though the Boy Scouts organization has set itself to work upon that problem. I know so little of what it is possible to do in that direction, or of the way in which we might proceed, that I would not dare to make suggestions. What I do know is that if the need for such action is once felt keenly enough by the children's librarians the action will follow. I have faith in their powers to "ken a wy."

There were so many other things that in the beginning I had meant to tell you! I had meant to search out, if I could, the underlying causes of the present situation, to show you if I might what relation our problem bears to the working out of the great forces that are to make this what Ellen Key calls the "century of the child." But I have left myself no time for these things, and, in truth, I have no longer the inclination. Moreover, I think you know them better than I could tell them to you.

If I might only have succeeded in bringing to the surface the conviction hidden in the heart of each of us, that we are facing a crisis and must face it all together, I shall have accomplished all my aim.

Somewhere on the road from yesterday to to-day we seem to have forgotten the truth our catechism taught us, that man is both body and spirit, and the spirit being immortal is more precious than the body. If I might dare to hope that anything I have tried to say could help us to see more clearly, that to-day when we are busy making and enforcing pure-food laws for the protection of our bodies, there is even greater need for the framing and enshrining in the hearts of all our people pure-book laws for the protection of our souls, I shall sorrow for nothing I have left unsaid.

Upon us and upon everyone into whose lives has come the saving grace of having known some of the world's great books intimately, rests an obligation as heavy as our blessings have been great. Not until we have done all that lies within our power, not only to bring the best books to the children who come directly or indirectly under the influence of our library agencies, but to assure to those other children whom we shall never see nor know, whom our libraries shall never reach, the chance to become possessors of these same best books, and to be protected from the worse than worthless ones, not until then shall we have fulfilled that obligation. God grant it's purpose, strength and wisdom to so fulfill it!

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE FIELD DAY.

But one general comment can be made on the Booksellers' League Field Day last Saturday—that it was a splendid success. The attendance was large; the skies, if unpropitious, did not actually spill over; the sporting events were well contested, and, if anybody did not have a good time, he was very inconspicuous.

The fun started with the Scribner-Baker Taylor baseball game, a close match, well played, with the honors clearly due the winning team, however. The complete score was:

 No times or distances were kept.

By this time it was nearly six o'clock, and the photographer had some difficulty in restraining the ravenous appetites that had been developed long enough to take a picture of the crowd. A few hardier spirits took a dip in the surf, but it was hardly warm enough for any wholesale indulgence.

At 6:30 Boehm's main dining room and a big overflow dining room were filled, confetti and songs helping the good cheer.

The only speechmaking attempted was a vote of thanks to those, publishers and others, who had helped to make the Field Day such a success, and the distribution of the various prizes. These were plenteous and elaborate: leather traveling bags and tourist cases, Waterman fountain pens, silk umbrellas and hose, alarm clocks, humidors, military brushes, Gillette safety razors, and aluminum coffee percolators, desk sets and Hurd writing paper, etc., etc.

The publishers to whom the League's thanks were voted were: D. Appleton & Co., The Baker & Taylor Co., The Bobbs-Merrill Co.,

After dinner the crowd adjourned to the dance hall or to the bowling alleys below, where those who had not shone in the afternoon sports were given their chance for prizes. The bowling winners were:

LADIES.

- 1—Mrs. Geo. Kleinteich.
- 2—Miss Jane Stewart.
- 3—Miss M. V. Stewart.

GENTLEMEN.

- 1—Christopher Sullivan (Baker & Taylor).
- 2—Geo. Kohles (Dillingham).
- 3—H. Giersberg (Putnam).

The winners of silver cups for dancing were: E. H. Floundlacher, of Grosset & Dunlap, and Margaret C. Beban, of Barnett Bros.

The spirit of the whole affair was of the best; everybody knew everybody, or if they didn't soon got acquainted. The task of the committee in charge next year—for, from the success this time, there isn't any doubt that there will be a "next year"—will be easier. And, speaking of the work of the Committee, they ask us to remind members that their auditing labors will be much lightened by a prompt accounting to them of all tickets sent out.

PERSONAL NOTES ON THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE FIELD DAY.

By our Special Correspondent.

The genial faces of "Uncle Ed" Chapman and John Holden were sadly missed.

The occasion was the first one attended by Charlie Burkhardt at which the ladies were present.

Theodore E. Schulte's radiant smile made it possible to get a good picture of the crowd, on what would otherwise been a dark day.

General Manager McKeachy had to make five changes of transportation lines to get to his house in Flatbush. He has now qualified as a "lightning change" artist.

Henry Hoyns, of Harper & Bros., was present without his "brush." The absence of said "brush" made him look like a dashing young ingenue.

If the young lady who won the foot race for ladies, starts in the foot races for men next year, several are going to have tickets on her to win.

Fred Hafely and Jack Hovendon enjoyed the races from a private box in the café window about one quarter of a mile away. They were aided by "strong" glasses.

Louis Kronig of Grosset & Dunlap was the umpire for the bases. When a big buyer got on the paths, Louis turned his back until the runner got home.

Mr. McKeachy came near to disproving the old adage of "A man cannot be in two places at the same time." He was here, there and everywhere.

Mr. Tessaro was a careful and painstaking umpire. He took particular care to call all close decisions on large players "safe" and took pains to avoid being hit by the ball.

Ned Burt won the shot put, was close up in the running broad jump, had a good score in howling, but it took him 30 minutes to pass a given point in the fat man's race.

The chaffeurs who drove the "shuttle" automobiles between the station and grounds, have all the grafting politicians lashed to the mast and howling for mercy.

"Old Sport Crane," of Grosset & Dunlap, got busy at his favorite pastime immediately he arrived at the grounds. He carried away "fo' bits" of my money betting on the weather.

Athletic Manager A. Wessels evidently thought but little of the boys' ability as jumpers. He brought a six foot tape to measure with. Outside of that he was there with bells on, forty ways.

The writer's day was spoilt when he discovered that the official photographer's "bush" was longer than his own. The Seven Sutherland Sisters had nothin' on the photographer when it came to "cranial covering."

From his "coigne of vantage" on an "out of print" bar in the rear of the Terpsichorean Hall, Frederick Lacey was an interested spectator, and avowed his intention of learning all the new dances the coming season. Look out for him next year in the prize dancing.

Henry Malkan exhibited great care before entering the fat man's race. He was heard to whisper to Mrs. Malkan that his accident insurance policies could be found in the top drawer on the "thumb" hand side of the chiffonier.

PEMBROKE BOOK SALE TOTALS $194,680.

America will get the lion share of the famous Pembroke Library. George D. Smith, the New York dealer, obtained 55 of the 105 items disposed of on June 25th the first day of the two-day sale at Sotheby's, London, and came well to the front on the 26th.

The highest price obtained at the first day's sale was £2,120 ($10,600), which was paid by Quaritch for the famous block book of the Apocalypsis. The book is supposed to have been printed in Nuremberg or Bamberg about 1460. It consists of fifty leaves of designs and inscriptions in Gothic characters printed from wood blocks and is bound in old English red morocco. Authorities mention only one other complete copy in existence, that one being at Munich. Quaritch also obtained Caxton's "Game and Playe of the Chesse," printed at Bruges in 1475, and supposed to be the second book made by Caxton. The price paid was $9,000, Mr. Smith being the underbidder.

The second highest price was obtained for a first edition of Durandus's Rationale, 160 leaves, printed in Gothic characters in two colors at Mainz in 1459. This brought $9,750.

Among the gems secured by Mr. Smith were the first xylographic edition of the Ars Moriendi, ($2,500); Joannes Balbus's "Catholicon," ($2,200); the third Caxton edition of Guillaume de Tignonville's "Dictes and Notable Wyse Sayengis of the Philosophers," ($5,250); Gellius's "Noctes Atticæ," ($1,850), and Godfrey de Bouillon's "King of Jerusalem," ($1,275).

A copy of the Book of St. Albans, first edition, described as one of the rarest books in the English language and the first of English sporting books, was bought by Mr. Smith for $9,000.

Other rarities sold and the prices they brought follow:

Berlinghieri, Geographia, original edition, $1,075; Biblia Pauperum, block book of the fifteenth century, the copy containing thirty leaves out of the forty, $3,900; Cæsar's works, first edition, Roman letter, illuminated in Florentine style, $3,000; Cessolis, the Game and Plays of the Chesse Moralized, Caxton, second edition, $1,500.

Cicero, De Oratore libri III., first edition, the first book printed in Italy of which copies are known and described as "probably the first printed Latin classic," brought $5,000. Other Cicero's were sold at high figures. Dante's La Divina Commedia, "generally regarded as the most ancient edition of the poet," brought $4,950; Hieronymus Expositio in symbolum apostolorum, and Aristoteles, Ethica, both in Gothic type, the first and second books printed at Oxford, brought $3,800.

At the second day's sale, June 26th, a fifteenth century geographical manuscript of Ptolemy, with maps, excited the keenest competition and was bought by Mr. Hiersemann for the great price of $9,250, but most of the gems were again captured by Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith bought among other items the following at the prices named:

William Caxton's edition of Ralph Higden's Polychronicon in English, the first published, dated 1482, $1,350.

Homer's "Opera Omnia" in two volumes, printed in small Greek characters, with a miniature of Homer in colors, printed at Florence in 1488, $1,800.

A Book of Hours with calendar, decorated throughout, with nine brilliantly illuminated full page miniatures, a remarkably fine example of the best style of the French illuminator's art of the fifteenth century, $3,000.

A second edition of Lactantius, printed in 1448, $1,250.

Lascaris's "Grammatica Græca," the first book printed in Greek, printed in 1476, $1,175.

Raoul Le Fevre's histories of Troy, translated into English by William Caxton, the first book printed in the English language, $2,500. "Patavinus," Historiarum Romanarum Decades III., dated 1469, $1,600.

Lucanus's "Pharsalia," dated 1449, and said to be extremely rare, $1,200.

A second edition of John Mirk's "Festivall," dated 1490, $1,600.

Marcus Plautus's "Viginti Comædie," dated 1490, $1,525.

A second Dutch edition of a block book, being the Dutch translation of the Latin Speculum, sold for $6,000. This book is very rare, but there are four leaves missing.

Tacitus's "Annalium et Historiarum libri Superstites," the first book printed with catchwords, dated 1473, $1,000.

Quaritch bought among other purchases the following at the prices named:

A Book of Hours, by Simon Vostre, one of the earliest Roman Hours printed, $900.

Manilius's "Astronomicon," dated 1490, $8,000. This book is in Roman letter, with long lines, 28 to a page, with signatures but no numeration.

Plinius Secundis, "Naturalis Historiæ," the second of the three works issued from the first Venice press, dated 1469, $1,700.

"Grammatici Commentarii in Bucolica, Georgica et Æniedem Virgilli," the first book printed at Florence, dated 1471, $3,950.

Virgilius's "Opera," Roman letter, with a portrait of Virgil, $1,700.

Sandwith, the dealer, bought what is generally regarded as a first edition of Horatius's "Opera," dated 1471, for $2,500.

Hiersmann paid $1,300 for "Psalterium Hebraicum, Græcum, Arabicum et Chaldaicum," with a commentary of Psalm xix., which contains the earliest printed account of the life and voyages of Christopher Columbus. He also paid $9,250 for Ptolemy's geographical manuscript of the fifteenth century on vellum, with a codex of the twenty-seven ancient traditional maps illustrating the "Geographia" of Ptolemy. The grand total of the two days' sale was $194,680.

The last of the Devonshire Library recently purchased by Mr. Smith is being shipped to America. Mr. Smith is going to hold an exhibition.

EATON-IVES-STURGIS-WALTON COMPANY IN TROUBLE.

ACCORDING to a report received as the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY goes to press, the Eaton-Ives-Sturgis-Walton Company, of 31 East 27th Street, New York, are in some financial difficulty. The trouble originated in the Chicago end of the business, where a petition in bankruptcy was filed Wednesday.

Judge Hand has appointed the Central Trust Company of Illinois ancillary receiver for the New York property of the firm.

The assets here are estimated at $50,000. The company was incorporated in New York in February, 1914, with a capital of $300,000, and was a consolidation of Sturgis & Walton, of New York City, and Eaton & Ives, of Chicago.

AUTHOR APOLOGIZES TO RICHARD G. BADGER.

WE have printed some account of the legal proceedings instituted by Dr. D. T. Smith, of Louisville, Ky., against Richard G. Badger, Gordon Badger and the Gorham Press for alleged breach of contract. The defendants in these suits have since then secured a judgment of $50,000 for libel against Dr. Smith. His duly acknowledged retraction we print below:

LOUISVILLE, KY., March 7, 1914.

To Richard G. Badger, Gordon Badger and The Gorham Press.

Gentlemen:

I desire to acknowledge fully and freely that I was entirely mistaken as to the truth of the allegations made by me in action No. 81,911 in the Common Pleas Branch of the Jefferson Circuit Court, filed by me on July 30, 1913, against you and each of you, and also as to the truth of the allegations made by me in action No. 154,372 in the Court of Common Pleas of Hamilton County, O., filed by me against you and each of you on August 4, 1913, and I admit that I was entirely wrong in charging that you or any of you had ever done me any wrong whatever. As a matter of fact, after carefully investigating all the circumstances surrounding the transaction referred to in the aforesaid actions, I am satisfied and I confess that the allegations and charges made by me were not true, and I ask you to accept this letter as some slight reparation for the wrong which I have done you.

Yours truly,

(Signed) D. T. SMITH.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

PROPOSED CENSORSHIP OF FILMS AFFECTS COPYRIGHT.

Among a number of new bills introduced into Congress affecting motion pictures, two, one introduced by Senator Smith of Georgia (Sen. 4941), one by Representative Hughes of Georgia (H. R. 14895), indirectly affect copyright. Though not identical in terms these two bills are similar in purport. They provide for a federal censorship of all motion picture films by "a new division of the Bureau of Education to be known as the Federal Motion Picture Commission." One section in each bill provided "that no copyright shall be issued for any film which has not previously received the certificate and seal of this Commission." Neither bill has any likelihood of passage.

SCENARIOS TO BE COPYRIGHTABLE.

By the provisions of a bill introduced by Representative Willis (H. R. 15321), motion picture scenarios would receive specific mention in the catalog of classes of copyrightable works. Section 5, clause (d), of the act would be amended as follows: "dramatic or dramatico-musical compositions, including the brief synopsis, sketch or scenario, or the descriptions of the characters and actions to be depicted by motion-picture photo-plays."—the italicized matter being the amendatory portion.

BILL FOR DESIGN PROTECTION.

The necessity of protection for designs more complete than that afforded either by the copyright law on the one hand or the trademark provisions of the patent law on the other hand, has found expression in a detailed bill introduced by Representative Oldfield (H. R. 11321), providing for the registration of designs. The Patent Office is charged with this work and the issuance of proper certificates. The classes of arts and trades "expressly recognizable as registrable" for their designs are as follows:

Machines and machine parts not otherwise classified.

Stoves, ranges, and heating apparatus.

Vehicles and vehicle parts.

Textiles, including print cloths, laces, nets, veilings, embroideries, and other trimmings or ornamentations for apparel, drapings, hangings, furniture mats, and coverings other than those in class five.

Floor and wall coverings.

Furniture of all kinds.

Type faces, electrotypes, borders, ornaments, and cuts of all kinds intended for printing, lithographing, or other use in the graphic arts.

Clocks, jewelry, decorative "art goods," including vases and bric-a-brac, bronzes, silverware, tableware, and glassware not otherwise classified.

Lamps and lighting fixtures of all kinds, including globes and shades, plumbing fixtures, bathroom fixtures, builders' hardware and trimmings.

Packages, including bottles, jars, and other containers.

Pictorial designs, including postcards and other commercial prints, lithographs, and so forth, not registrable under the Copyright Act.

Miscellaneous, under which registration rights shall be limited to the specific product named in the certificate.

INFRINGEMENT OF SIMILAR PHOTOGRAPHS.

A test of the copyright law of interest to photographers and artists is about to be brought to trial in the United States District Court. In the action, Edward Gross, a picture dealer, of 853 Broadway, N. Y. City, is complainant against Solomon Seligman, the Seligman Frame Company, and the Van Dyke Gravure Company. The suit raises the question how closely a picture may approximate another, the subject of both being a young woman in the nude, without constituting an infringement of the copyrights of the owner of the original production.

The copyright picture upon which the Gross suit is based is a photograph entitled "The Grace of Youth," taken by Julian W. Rochlitz of this city. Mr. Rochlitz composed and took this photograph and sold the potential copyright in it to Mr. Gross. He was paid by the present complainant for the copyright, but two years later made use of the same model and produced a close imitation of the original picture. He named the second picture "Cherry Ripe" and disposed of it to the Seligman concern.

The second picture was in a pose identical with the first, with the single exception that the young woman now wore a smile and held a cherry stem between her teeth.

Judge Hand, granted an injunction against the Seligmans, while a writ of seizure also was issued. Charles Goldzier of House, Grossman & Vorhaus, counsel for the Seligman firm, appealed to the United States Court of Appeals for a dissolution of the injunction. Judge Lacombe, in his decision, refused to dissolve the injunction.

"Of course when the first picture has been produced and copyrighted," said Judge Lacombe in his decision, "every other artist is entirely free to form his own conception of the 'Grace of Youth,' or anything else, and to avail of the same young woman's services in making it permanent, whether he works with pigments or a camera. If, by chance, the pose, background, light, and shade, etc., of this new picture were strikingly similar, and if, by reason of the circumstance that the same young woman was the prominent feature in both compositions, it might be very difficult to distinguish the new picture from the old one, the new would still not be an infringement of the old, because it is in no sense a copy of the old. This is a risk which the original artist takes when he merely produces a likeness of an existing face and figure, instead of supplementing its features by the exercise of his own imagination.

"It seems to us, however, that we have no such new photograph of the same model. The identity of the artist and the many close identities of pose, light and shade, indicate very strongly that the first picture was used to produce the second. Whether the model in the second case was posed, and light and shade, &c., arranged with a copy of the first photograph physically present before the artist's eyes, or whether his mental reproduction of the exact combination he had already once effected was so clear and vivid that he did not need the physical reproduction of it, seems to us immaterial. The one thing, viz., the exercise of artistic talent, which made the first photographic picture a subject of copyright, has been used not to produce another picture, but to duplicate the original."

Judge Lacombe said that the eye of an artist or a connoisseur no doubt would find differences between these two photographs, but that the identities were much greater than the differences.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ALZAMORE H. CLARK, died at his home, 618 South Street, Peekskill, N. Y., on June 26, at the age of 67. He started in the book business in Peekskill over forty years ago. For about thirty years he was a dealer in rare books in New York City, and had his residence in Brooklyn. From 66 Nassau Street he moved to 34 Park Row and then to 174 Fulton Street, opposite St. Paul's Church. In 1887 he was burned out. He moved back to Peekskill ten years ago and opened a bookstore there at 218 Washington Street. He is survived by two daughters and five sons. Mr. Clark was well known to collectors. His specialty was Americana. In his book catalogues and pamphlets he was accustomed to introduce comments of his own, which made curious reading. In them he freed his mind against what he considered humbugs and foibles in books and men and his criticisms were often personal and slangy.

STANLEY PORTAL HYATT, the author, died on June 30 at his home in Sydenham, London, England, at the age of 37. He was graduated from Dulwich College. Before he attained his majority he went out to Australia and after working on a sheep ranch in New South Wales went to Matabeleland at the time of the rinderpest. He went in for trading, and at the age of 22 was the largest native trader in Mashonaland and always maintained a number of caravans on the road. Mr. Hyatt was employed by the Portuguese at this time to make explorations in the central part of Mozambique, and on his return found that his cattle business had been destroyed by a new disease, which had wiped out his herds. He then wandered through the East, and when the Philippine war broke out in 1904 enlisted in the United States Army and was the only Englishman to serve through the campaign. In 1905 he returned to England and took up literature. After a bitter struggle, he was successful with his first novel, "Marcus Hay." Following this he wrote the "Little Brown Brother," dealing with the Philippines, which made him well known in this country. His principal other publications are, "The Law of the Bolo," "The Marriage of Hilary Carden," "Black Sheep," "The Land of Promises," "Biffel, a Trek Ox," "The Diary of a Soldier of Fortune," "The Northward Trek," and "Off the Main Track." He was socialistically inclined.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FRED. E. WOODWARD, of Washington, will sail for a vacation trip abroad on July 11th.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY has announced the postponement until next Spring of the publication of Mr. Henry Holt's forthcoming book, "On the Cosmic Relations."

A NEW BOOK by Freud, whose "Interpretation of Dreams," published last year, aroused much discussion in this country, is shortly to be issued by the Macmillan Co. under the title "The Psycho-Pathology of Everyday Life."

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. has just published "Ten Sex Talks to Boys," by I. D. Steinhardt, M.D. The book is a companion volume to the earlier work by the same author, "Talks to Girls."

WILLIAM ALLEN NEILSON, author of "Essentials of Poetry" and editor of the series "The Types of English Literature," has been appointed exchange professor at the Sorbonne, and sails for Europe this week.

THE EPISCOPAL marriage certificate in book form can be obtained from the Church Literature Press, bound either in white leatherette or white parchment. The book is entitled "O. M. V."—Our Marriage Vow.

RESEARCH IS DAILY pushing back the forbidding boundaries of disease. A valuable addition to our knowledge of the treatment of cancer will appear in the volume "Radium and Cancer," by Dr. Howard A. Kelly, to be published this Fall by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"OH! JAMES!" the story of a man who tried to prove the goodness of the world is announced for publication by Little, Brown & Co. in August. The author is H. M. Edgington. The book should not be confused with "James" announced by Doran.

THE LITTLE COUSIN OF LONG AGO SERIES has an addition. This time the author, Julia Darrow Cowles, writes of "Our Little Spartan Cousin of Long Ago." The book is a fitting kinsman to the earlier Page publications, "Our Little Roman Cousin" and "Our Little Athenian Cousin."

B. W. HUEBSCH, the publisher, goes abroad, Tuesday, for a mingled vacation and business trip to England and the Continent, the Leipzig book fair being one of his particular objective points.

"ASHTON-KIRK, SPECIAL DETECTIVE," is announced for publication on September 1, and is not now ready as stated in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of June 6. Along with this last of John T. McIntyre's books the Penn Publishing Co. calls attention to his earlier stories, "Ashton-Kirk, Investigator," and "Ashton-Kirk, Secret Agent."

THE SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY of the great French novelist, Anatole France, has been celebrated by the publication of his latest story, "The Revolt of the Angels." The English translation is in hand and will be published in New York and London by John Lane Company.

"OUR DISHONEST CONSTITUTION," by Allan L. Benson, just published by B. W. Huebsch, offers plenty of food for discussion. The author believes that there was just as much unfairness among our forefathers as there is among politicians of to-day, and that the Constitution by no means gives us a representative government.

HENRY HOLT & Co. announce for fall publication "Musicians of Today" by Romain Rolland, known to many as the author of "Jean Christophe." In the preparation of the English translation a few changes have been made by the author, chief among which is the bringing up to date of the chapter on "The Musical Movement In Paris."

A HOST OF READERS of George Allan England's novel, "Darkness and Dawn," will welcome a new story by him, "The Golden Blight," to be published this fall by Small, Maynard & Co. The same publishers announce also a new story "Of One Blood" by Charles M. Sheldon, the well-known author of "In His Steps" and "Jesus Is Here."

"JAVA AND HER NEIGHBORS," the story of a three months' tour of the Dutch-Malay Islands, is a recent Putnam publication. There are seventy-eight illustrations, reproducing excellent photographs taken by the author. An interesting chapter contains a sketch of the early history of the islands and a survey of their present condition.

THE ENTIRELY NEW, revised and reset edition of "Synonyms, Antonyms, and Prepositions," just published by Funk & Wagnalls Co., contains an increase of 154 new pages of text. Hundreds of new synonyms have been added; further dissertations upon discriminations of meaning; more antonyms, etc., making the work now more than ever a large and thoroughly indexed guide to the proper and forceful use of the language.

WILLIAM SULZER was named as defendant, June 29, in a suit for $3,029 begun in the Supreme Court by the J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Company, publisher of "Sulzer's Short Speeches." The publishing company, according to the complaint, delivered copies of his speeches, worth $3,777, to the Governor between June 8 and Sept. 26, 1912, and incurred charges of $94 subsequently. The amount sued for is the amount which the company says is unpaid.

THE CENTURY Co. definitely announce July 15th as the issue date of "Juvenile Courts and Probation," which has the endorsement of, and is the report of, a special committee of the National Probation Association. The volume is written by Bernard Flexner and Roger N. Baldwin. Mr. Flexner sails for England July 11th, where he will make a study of juvenile court conditions.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. thought that they were one move ahead when they got a real picture of the King of Sagamore Hill reading "Penrod." But Reilly & Britton, sole agents for "The Eyes of the World," published by the Book Supply Co., came right back with a photograph of an agent snapped in the act of writing an order for 25,000 copies of "The Eyes of the World." What "hunch" will the hard-working ad. man get next?

THE Council of the English Society of Authors, in view of the extension during recent years of the activities of the society, embracing as they do the interests of dramatic authors and composers, as well as those of members of the literary profession, on the recommendation of the Committee of Management, have sanctioned a change in the society's name. In future it will be known as The Incorporated Society of Authors, Playrights and Composers. Its address remains as before, No. 1, Central Buildings, Tothill Street, Westminster, S. W.

THOSE EXACTING CRITICS who reproachfully accuse James Montgomery Flagg of not reading the stories he illustrates, so that the hero carefully described as wearing boots appears in pumps, will be silenced by the publication of "I Should Say So!" (Doran) the latest book illustrated by this artist. Mr. Flagg not only read this book, he wrote it. With picture and text he burlesques most of the foibles of to-day, from Imitation O. Henry Fiction and Sexazines to What Migentleman Will Wear. And here at least his gentlemen can wear pumps if he pleases.

AT THIS SEASON, when the man who can go to the seashore and the man who can't stays home and dabbles around his garden evenings, two of Scribner's importations should prove especially interesting. "Animal Life On the Seashore," by G. A. and C. L. Boulenger, is just the sort of book every one has wanted if he was possessed of a grain of curiosity as he walked by the seashore strewn with its queer sea life cast up by the high tide. It is a book simply written, for the amateur. The other book, "Rock Gardens," by Lewis B. Meredith, contains numerous illustrations and a list of plants suitable for rock gardens, with notes on the soil they require.

THE "CHILDHOOD AND YOUTH SERIES," a Bobbs-Merrill project will present the newer ideas in the education and training of the young that have been worked out and applied successfully by people engaged in that occupation. The four books now announced are:

"Natural Education," by Winifred Sackville Stoner; "The Child and His Spelling," by William A. Cook and M. V. O'Shea; "Learning and Doing," by Edgar James Swift, and "the High School Age," by Irving King. Mrs. Stoner's book tells of the author's own experience in training her child, whose mental development was so extraordinary that at the age of five she could speak several languages and had even written for the newspapers and magazines.

WORD HAS come from abroad that three of the philosophical works of Henri Bergson have been put upon the Index by the Catholic Church. The works in question are his "Creative Evolution," which contains the kernel of his philosophy, "Matter and Memory, an Essay on the Relation of the Body and the Mind," and his "Essay on the Immediate Data of Consciousness." This action on the part of the Catholic Church recalls the ban recently placed by it upon a portion of Maeterlinck's works. In barring Bergson's philosophy the Church has not attempted to argue the rightness or wrongness of Bergsonism. The purpose of placing a portion of the Frenchman's philosophical writings upon the Index is to warn Catholics against an "element of plausibility" in them which might undermine their faith. It is interesting to note that students may obtain permission to read the barred books providing they give sufficient assurance of their being strong Catholics.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., and ALTOONA, FLA.—Edgar F. Otis, a book and stationery dealer, having stores at Alexandria Bay, Thousand Island Park, N. Y., and Altoona, Fla., filed a petition in the United States Court last week, showing unsecured liabilities of $5,927 and assets of $5,200. The assets consist of stock in the three stores. There are 100 creditors, who mostly have small claims against Mr. Otis.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—H. M. Levy, who conducts a book and stationery store at 220 South street, suffered a fire loss on June 15. A little while before 2 o'clock that morning a patrolman noted the glare of flames in the store. He investigated and found fire eating into the stock of books and paper. It is believed that a spark from a light in the store fell on the cloth netting which covered the stock.

NEW YORK CITY.—Utility Printing & Publishing Co., of 216 William street, has filed schedules showing liabilities $109,428 and assets $62,543, consisting of plant, $46,850; accounts, $13,617; claim, $1,062; stock, $1,000, and cash, $4. Among the creditors are Chas. A. Jenney, $49,381; Underwriter Print & Publishing Co., $15,570; James F. Ringland, $9,454, and Whitlock Printing Press Manufacturing Co., $8,000, secured.

LUCKY CHOICE.

"My husband is a most inveterate reader," exclaimed Mrs. Knox, with a slight tone of ennui. He reads until dawn every morning. Why, last night I found him asleep with his nose in 'V. V.'s Eyes!'"

"Perhaps," commented her husband's bookish friend, "you should be thankful you did not find him with his nose in 'The Inside of the Cup!'"—Kansas City Star.

SHOP TALK.

THE TWO paper salesmen, who, having amassed a fortune (?), had been traveling around the world, leaned over the side of their vessel, going into the East Indian port, and sized up the natives.

"There's a pretty girl, anyway," said one; "India tint, about 24x36—120 pounds, I should guess."

The other salesman nodded.

"Very good stock, I should imagine," he added; "and, coming from the European capitals, as we have, it is a relief to get a slant at something that doesn't have a dull or enamel finish."—"Paragrafs," The Whitaker Paper Company.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specific books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, unspecified wants, repeated matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in JUNE, 1914

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas. W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8° 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

"The Trade List Annual"

"A Friendly Suggestion"

We are constantly urged by booksellers and librarians who have to daily hunt up information about books, to make the TRADE LIST ANNUAL more complete if practicable.

Is your list of books among the missing catalogues?

The TRADE LIST ANNUAL is the daily reference book of both the buyer and seller of books everywhere. It is more often consulted than any other trade tool in the dealer's outfit, and when a catalogue is missing, it causes an annoying delay in answering queries, and possible sales are often lost.

The advantages of having a catalogue permanently filed where the book hunter expects to find it are obvious.

The cost of having a catalogue inserted in the TRADE LIST ANNUAL is very much less than the postage alone would be to mail a like number to every bookseller and public library of importance in the United States that subscribes for the Annual each year, and in the ANNUAL it is permanently filed and cannot be misplaced or lost.

The cost of insertion is from $5 to $15 only, according to the length of list. We will gladly quote the exact cost on receipt of list and request for estimate.
